TIKAL

Perhaps the most visually stunning and impressive of all Maya sites, Tikal's five monolithic temples pierce the jungle canopy (Temple IV reaching a height of almost 230 feet) and ancient plazas, stelae and ball courts tell of a rich and powerful history when Tikal's population reached almost 100,000. By the beginning of the Classic Period (AD 250) Tikal was competing for regional domination with Uaxactún and Calakmul, and later Tikal was briefly conquered and subjugated by a powerful alliance of Caracol and Calakmul between AD 562 and AD 682. From AD 682 onwards Tikal flourished again under Lord Ah Cacau, and continued to dominate the region into the 9th Century. Today the site is justifiably recognized as one of the archeological wonders of the Americas. Its unspoiled jungle setting within the Tikal National Park makes it a paradise for birders, nature lovers and amateur archaeologists.

YAXHÁ & TOPOXTE

The important ceremonial center of Yaxhá is located between the two lakes of Yaxhá and Sacnab. Upon arrival we board a "Lancha" (motorized canoe) to visit Topoxte, a site with a long occupational history that became a Late Classic outpost of Yaxhá before being abandoned by 900 AD. The site was later reoccupied by the Maya K'owoj in AD 1350 becoming the largest Post Classic Maya site in the Petén. Topoxte was finally abandoned in AD1450. Formerly sited on an island the ruins are now located on a peninsula due to lower water levels. After lunch, we will explore Yaxhá, an important Maya site and recent location of the US 'Survivor' TV series. Yaxhá has over 500 structures, including 40 stelae, 2 ball courts and 9 temple pyramids. Structures at Yaxhá show the influence of Teotihuacan and Plaza 'C' has the only twin-pyramid complex outside of Tikal which gives an insight into Yaxhá's political allegiances. We will end the tour atop temple 216 to view the jungle and lakes of Yaxhá and Sacnab.

UAXACTÚN

Located just 2 hours' drive from La Lancha the history of Uaxactún lies entwined with its near neighbor and greatest rival Tikal. The two sites entered the Classic period as equals in size and power. Stelae 9 shows the site's earliest recorded date yet by AD 378 Great Jaguar Paw, the ruler of Tikal waged a new kind of warfare taught by their allies from Teotihuacan and conquered Uaxactún. While excavating the site Archaeologists discovered remarkable late preclassic sculptures and elaborately decorated temple platforms which feature large plaster masks representing the sacred living Mountain, the Witz Monster. The grounds of the site are lovingly maintained and the on-site museum contains a wonderful collection of unique artifacts.

CEIBAL

The impressive ruins of Ceibal lie on an important trade route linking the Petén Lowlands of Guatemala with the Caribbean coast and Mexico. We travel by vehicle to the banks of the Pasión River, and then take a scenic boat trip to the isolated yet well maintained Maya site of Ceibal. Ceibal is located just inland on a large bend in the river. It's a beautifully landscaped, partially excavated site comprising three main 'groups' occupying different hill tops. The site enjoyed an extremely long period of occupation from the Early Classic period through to the Terminal Classic period, when it enjoyed a hiatus when other cities in the region were in decline or abandoned. Due to the exceptionally hard stone used at the site there are well-preserved ornate stelae located around the two main plazas. Numerous stelae depict events after the Classic Maya collapse of the Petexbatún kingdom.

Monuments at the site are varied in time period and style with some showing influences from non-Maya cultures of central Mexico and the Gulf Coast. Once we have visited the site we'll return to Sayaxche and our vehicles via the Petexbatún lagoon home to turtles, crocodiles, otters and a large variety of birds.

AGUATECA

The trip to Aguateca is an exciting full day adventure combining nature and archaeology. We depart early and drive just over two hours to the river port town of Sayaxche on the River La Pasión. From here we board a motorized boat for the three hour trip downstream to the ruins of Aguateca. Dos Pilas and later Aguateca were capitals of the dynasty founded in AD 645 by a prince from Tikal. It is here at Aguateca that the rulers of the Petexbatún kingdom made their last stand after fleeing Dos Pilas. The enemy remains an enigma, possibly the rulers of nearby Tamarindito an ex-vassal state or raiders of Putún Maya from modern day Tabasco State in Mexico. Aguateca is a fortified Maya city located close to Dos Pilas on a plateau overlooking the river. Surrounded by steep escarpments and a sheer sided 200 ft deep chasm the inhabitants also erected wooden palisades and managed to defend the city for about 50 years after the collapse of Dos Pilas until around AD 790 when they were overrun and the city was abandoned.

The Skyway is a six suspension bridge complex that provides the opportunity to explore the different strata of the rainforest. There is also a zipline for the adventurous.
